@Holy_TrinityCE Autumn Term 2 Issue 76

Dear Parents / Carers

Morning Transition

The children will be going straight to class upon arrival into school starting Monday 25th November 2024 due to the cold weather and morning logistics.

School Council Ambassadors

This week has been busy and fruitful.

Our School Council Ambassadors held their first meeting. Each child spoke about what they would like to achieve and the qualities they felt were important to be a good leader. Here are some of their thoughts

'I think to be a good school councillor you need to have ideas and be able to listen to others.'

'I think respect and being responsible is important.'

'Making decisions and involving each class.'

'Spreading happiness and being kind to others.'

'I would like to make changes to our playtime.'

'I am interested in introducing new games.'

'We to be responsible and set a good example.'

They are an ambitious and confident team who are excited to lead, inspire and introduce new initiatives.

We look forward to the changes they plan to make this year.

God bless
Ms Thomas

Holy Trinity Values Ambassador

Our Pupil Values Ambassador this week is Nayila Laher

You are exceptionally helpful and thoughtful at all times, Especially towards your peers. Well-done for always demonstrating all our school values.

Holy Trinity Staff Values Ambassador

Our Staff Values Ambassadors this week is Mr Paul Chetty

You are always willing to assist and support in all areas of school life, and this is very much appreciated.
Thank you for all you do.

FAITH FOUNDATION

We are in the last few weeks of November, and as we prepare for the advent season which leads us into the Festive season, it is worth taking stock of the last 11 months of this year.

Not only are we in the 11th month, but the year seems to have flown by so quick. With so many world events that have and are taking place, war in Israel and in the Middle East, In Russia & Ukraine, war in parts of Africa, devastation due to global warming as never been seen before, change of leadership in various countries, etc.

In our own individual and family lives, I'm sure there has been so much that has gone on, someone close to us or that we know that has passed on, those battling various health challenges, family breakdowns, loss of jobs, and the list is endless.

2024 has made and is making its own mark in all of our lives. All of the above might sound gloomy, but in the midst of these, there are positive things happening in peoples lives, in nations, etc.

Advent is a time when we take stock of the year, and whatever challenges we have faced or are facing, whatever good things have happened or is happening, in all of these let us see advent as a time to be expectant.

A time when we prepare to celebrate the birth of Christ that brought hope into the world, the birth that assures us that all shall be well, the birth that assures us of peace even in the midst of storms.

Advent is a Christian season of preparation and expectation for Christmas.

As we prepare for advent, may God open our hearts to a renewed revelation and understanding of the birth of Christ.

May our hearts not only be filled with joy, but be filled with the many blessings that comes with His birth.

Have a peaceful and blessed weekend.

Learning in Focus

As part of the Outdoor Science lesson data collection, Cheeta Class pupils investigated the vertebrates, invertebrates, flowering and non-flowering plants seen in Brockwell's Park this autumn. They used a tally chart to collect their data.

They used a tally chart to collect their data. They will be going in Spring and Summer to collect more data and see how their local environment changes

Being your child's role model

When children are very young, we are their principle role models. Advice and modelled behaviour at an early age will help to protect your child when they reach the stage of balancing your influence with that of peer pressure and adolescence. Regardless of how quickly the digital world is changing and of our ability to keep one step ahead of our children, by following some straightforward tips we can maximise their chances of growing into safe and responsible digital citizens.

Age appropriate content & PEGI ratings

There are so many entertaining, yet addictive, games and apps out there that aren't always suitable for younger children.

There can be huge intrigue and temptation for younger children to access games and apps that older members of the family are using. Pan European Game Information (PEGI) ratings exist to help consumers make an informed decision about game purchases and they shouldn't be ignored. They are based on the following content-related criteria: violence, grown-up themes, discrimination, fear, use of language, gambling and illegal activities.

Many popular games offer online player communication capabilities and encourage the purchase of add-ons to advance within the game. Demonstrate your own scepticism when it comes to in-app purchases.

Is it really a good idea to spend money on 100 virtual diamonds when you have limited funds? If your child receives pocket money, you could suggest that they make their own decisions about how to spend it, including on the purchase of apps and add-ons.

Apps use

Consider how you are using communication apps with friends. Try to model habits that show your own awareness of the permanence of online information. If anyone was to see the contents of your communications would this embarrass you in any way?

Appropriate times

If your child sees you on your smartphone or tablet during dinner time or late into the evening, what message is this giving them? You could also explicit technology-free times for focusing on conversation or other activity.

It goes without saying that children pick up both good and bad habits from us. We can help them make sensible choices by establishing our own good behaviours when engaging with the digital world. Here are some areas in which you can help your child develop simple habits by modelling them yourself and discussing them informally.

DEMONSTRATE YOUR OWN 'NETIQUETTE'

Model appropriate behaviour for your child, especially if they have access to your devices or you are using them together. Avoid commenting on, posting or following social media posts that you wouldn't want your child to see. Always post and communicate respectfully.

Openness

Establish open, non-judgemental, supportive communication about the use of digital devices. This way, if there are any problems, it is much more likely your child will tell you about them in good time. Always stress that your aim is to keep them safe and happy, not to restrict them.

Personal information

Only share information online that you know wouldn't cause any harm if a person with bad intent, or even an employer, were to see it.

Security

From virus protection to filtering, talk openly about why this is important and the purpose of having such security in place. If you are downloading apps for your child, focus their attention on the privacy requirements of the apps, don't just click 'Accept' without reading them. Question why some apps ask permission to access all your files or photos. What could they be used for? If you find the privacy terms unacceptable, do not install the app - this will help your child to develop the same good habits.

Sharenting

We have to admit that we like to share the positive moments in our child's life; social media is certainly a platform to do this. However, do we fully understand the potential risks of posting to social media? How often do we ask our child if we have permission to put an image of them online? Do we think it is OK to post about our child and share content because our accounts are only visible to friends? Do we understand the damage that posting and sharing content about our child could have in the future? These questions must be considered carefully. If in doubt, don't share!

Rules

Establish rules that all family members abide by, including when accessing the internet away from home. Talk through strategies that your child can use if they are put in an uncomfortable position when you are not around.
